

Marines, Sailors, families and loved ones,

The spread of COVID-19 is giving us all cause for concern. As with all challenging times, there is great potential for confusion and uncertainty. With that, I want reassure all in the Wounded Warrior family that we are taking all appropriate action and will continue to prioritize and protect our recovering service members and their families. Leaders throughout the Regiment are taking all necessary measures to ensure you are informed and cared for, wherever you are based or stationed. We are working, regardless of the closures and restrictions, to mitigate any issues you may face and are dedicated to continuing the care you need.

Please visit our website for information on the services that are available, either physically or remotely, and to explore our frequently asked questions. We will update this site as information becomes available.

If you have any additional questions or concerns, I encourage you to reach out through our call center, which remains available 24/7 at 1-877-487-6299, or to our command via email at wwr\_pao@usmc.mil. We are honored to serve you all, and will continue to work toward providing the best solutions during this time. Thank you.

Semper Fidelis and Etiam in Pugna,

Colonel Richard H. Pitchford
Commanding Officer,
Wounded Warrior Regiment
